II. ATTORNEYS GENERAL FINDINGS

2. GOOGLE is a Delaware limited liability company with its principal place of business at 1600 Amphitheatre Parkway, Mountain View, California.

3. GOOGLE does not admit to the Findings set forth in paragraphs 4 through 39 below, and does not admit to any violation of or liability arising from any federal, state, or local laws in stipulating to the entry of this Assurance.

4. At all times relevant to this Assurance, GOOGLE markets, advertises, sells, and provides products and services to consumers<sup>4</sup> in each of the STATES and throughout the United States.

BACKGROUND

5. To use certain products and services offered by GOOGLE, consumers must provide personal information to GOOGLE and further consent to GOOGLE's collection of data, including LOCATION INFORMATION.

6. GOOGLE collects data about USERS through GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings, which apply to data collected from any DEVICE that is signed-into a GOOGLE ACCOUNT.

7. Those ACCOUNT settings include LOCATION HISTORY and WEB & APP ACTIVITY.

8. LOCATION HISTORY captures a signed-in USER's LOCATION OF PRESENCE. LOCATION HISTORY has existed in some form since approximately 2009. The data collected by LOCATION HISTORY is derived from signals from the location sensors on a USER's DEVICE, such as sensors for GPS, cell tower, Wi-Fi, and Bluetooth signals. Using those various signals, GOOGLE can track a USER's PRECISE LOCATION INFORMATION, including both outside and inside buildings.

<sup>4</sup> For purposes of these Findings, the terms "consumer" and "user" are used interchangeably to refer to a consumer who has used or uses Google's products and services.

9. GOOGLE applies internal tools to analyze the LOCATION INFORMATION in LOCATION HISTORY and logs this information with the USER's GOOGLE ACCOUNT. Using this information, GOOGLE builds a sequential map of all of the places a USER has been, which the USER may review and edit.

10. GOOGLE also links LOCATION HISTORY data with other USER data to draw inferences about the USER. These inferences inform what advertising GOOGLE will present to that USER.

11. GOOGLE monetizes LOCATION HISTORY data by providing advertisers with "store conversion" rates – i.e., the number of users who have viewed ads and then visited the advertised store. GOOGLE's ability to track USERS' physical locations after they click on digital ads is a unique selling point for its advertising business.

12. WEB & APP ACTIVITY is a separate GOOGLE ACCOUNT setting that collects and stores USERS' locations. Whereas LOCATION HISTORY passively collects LOCATION INFORMATION on a USER's movements, WEB & APP ACTIVITY records a USER's LOCATION INFORMATION when the USER is interacting with certain GOOGLE products such as Google Search or Google Maps.

13. GOOGLE monetizes WEB & APP ACTIVITY data to make deductions about the USER's habits and interests for advertising purposes.

14. LOCATION HISTORY and WEB & APP ACTIVITY are independent settings. Disabling one setting does not impact whether a USER's LOCATION INFORMATION is collected and stored pursuant to the other setting. When a USER prevents location tracking by one of these services, GOOGLE is able to track and monetize the USER's location through the other setting, if enabled. Until recently, GOOGLE retained the data stored in connection with these settings indefinitely, unless the USER manually deleted the data.

15. GOOGLE also offers USERS a GOOGLE ACCOUNT setting related to personalized advertising—ADS PERSONALIZATION. GOOGLE represents that leaving this setting enabled would mean that, “Google can show you ads based on your activity on Google services (ex: Search, YouTube), and on websites and apps that partner with Google.” However, GOOGLE continues to target ads based on a USER’s LOCATION INFORMATION even if the USER disables ADS PERSONALIZATION.

16. GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings apply to multiple DEVICES that a consumer uses to access GOOGLE’s products and services. These settings follow the USER as they move across DEVICES.

17. From at least 2014 to at least 2019, GOOGLE misrepresented and omitted material information regarding the LOCATION HISTORY and WEB & APP ACTIVITY settings. These misrepresentations and omissions confused USERS about how LOCATION INFORMATION would be captured, stored, and used without USERS’ knowledge or consent.

GOOGLE’S MISREPRESENTATIONS ABOUT LOCATION HISTORY

18. GOOGLE presented LOCATION HISTORY to USERS as the setting that controlled GOOGLE’s collection and storage of a USER’s LOCATION INFORMATION. For years, on a public webpage regarding LOCATION HISTORY, GOOGLE assured users of its Android devices that “[y]ou can turn off Location History at any time. With Location History off, the places you go are no longer stored.” GOOGLE similarly explained that users of Apple products could log into their online GOOGLE ACCOUNT and select “Stop storing location” in order to turn off Location History, and that turning Location History off would “stop[] saving new location information.”

19. GOOGLE's statements prompting USERS to turn on LOCATION HISTORY, which is defaulted "off," also deceptively implied that only that setting controlled whether GOOGLE stores a USER's LOCATION INFORMATION. For example, at various times, GOOGLE told USERS that enabling LOCATION HISTORY "lets Google save your location;" allows GOOGLE to "store and use" the "places you go;" permits GOOGLE to "periodically store your location;" "allows GOOGLE to store a history of your location;" or allows GOOGLE "to save and manage your location information in your account."

20. Until at least mid-2018, GOOGLE's public help page on LOCATION HISTORY assured USERS that they "can turn off Location History at any time. With Location History off, the places you go are no longer stored." But even with LOCATION HISTORY disabled, GOOGLE tracks and stores USERS' locations in other ways. Depending on the USER's settings, GOOGLE can track the USER's location on a periodic or continuous basis through: (1) Other GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings, such as WEB & APP ACTIVITY; (2) Google Location Services (i.e., "Google Location Accuracy"), a device-level feature that "provides a device's location to apps[;]" (3) GOOGLE apps on the consumer's mobile device; (4) Wi-Fi or Bluetooth scans from the consumer's mobile device; (5) The consumer's IP address; and (6) Data collected and shared with GOOGLE's marketing partners and third-party apps.

GOOGLE'S MISREPRESENTATIONS REGARDING WEB & APP ACTIVITY

21. WEB & APP ACTIVITY collects certain types of LOCATION INFORMATION when a USER interacts with certain GOOGLE products. For example, if a USER asks Google Assistant to search for the author of a book, WEB & APP ACTIVITY would save the USER's location and the time when the query was made. GOOGLE also collects and stores information that could implicitly reveal a user's location, such as which places the user inputs into Google

Maps.

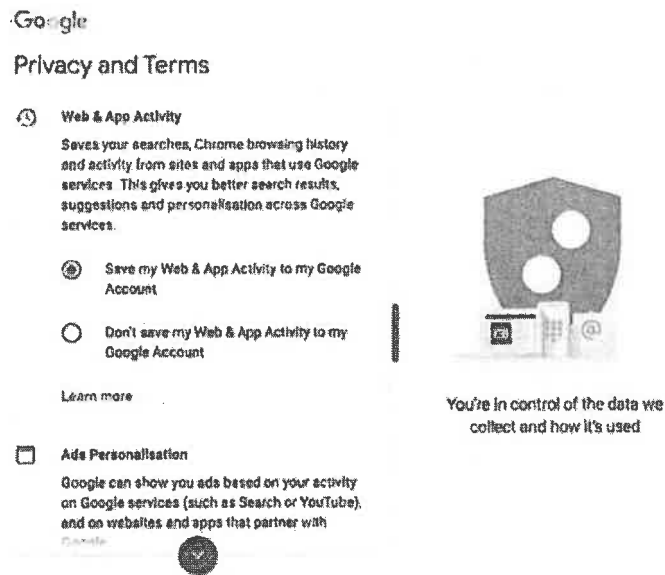

22. WEB & APP ACTIVITY is defaulted “on” for all GOOGLE ACCOUNTS and a USER is automatically opted-in to location tracking through that setting, unless the USER disables it. Until 2018, GOOGLE failed to even mention WEB & APP ACTIVITY at ACCOUNT set-up let alone disclose to USERS that such a setting controlled GOOGLE’s storage and use of some types of LOCATION INFORMATION.

23. USERS were only made aware that WEB & APP ACTIVITY was storing LOCATION INFORMATION if they happened to navigate to a separate webpage called “My Activity” where GOOGLE recorded data stored under WEB & APP ACTIVITY. However, when USERS first landed on the My Activity page, LOCATION HISTORY was presented as the only setting that related to location data. See:

24. In 2018, GOOGLE revised its GOOGLE ACCOUNT set-up process to include the option to disable WEB & APP ACTIVITY. However, GOOGLE continued to conceal from new USERS that LOCATION INFORMATION was captured by WEB & APP ACTIVITY. Until at least mid-2018, that fact was only provided through a link to see “More options” to customize ACCOUNT followed by the selection of a link to “Learn More” about the WEB & APP ACTIVITY setting. See:

25. For several years, GOOGLE’s Privacy Policies further omitted mention of WEB & APP ACTIVITY. For instance, the December 18, 2017 version of GOOGLE’s Privacy Policy listed examples of information about “your actual location” that GOOGLE “may collect and process.” These examples include a specific mention that “Location History allows Google to store a history of your location data,” but makes no reference to WEB & APP ACTIVITY.

26. Many of GOOGLE’s affirmative representations to consumers regarding WEB & APP ACTIVITY failed to disclose that this setting authorized GOOGLE to store and use

LOCATION INFORMATION. Additionally, GOOGLE routinely described WEB & APP ACTIVITY as a setting that allowed GOOGLE to store and use GOOGLE search history, Chrome web browser activity, and activity on GOOGLE apps—without mention of LOCATION INFORMATION.

27. As set forth above, GOOGLE misrepresented that disabling LOCATION HISTORY stopped GOOGLE from storing a USER’s location and concealed that WEB & APP ACTIVITY also stored LOCATION INFORMATION. This had the capacity to deceive users into believing WEB & APP ACTIVITY did not impact collection, storage, or use of LOCATION INFORMATION; that LOCATION HISTORY alone controlled whether GOOGLE retained and used LOCATION INFORMATION; and that disabling LOCATION HISTORY would prevent GOOGLE from retaining and using a USER’s historical locations on an ongoing basis.

GOOGLE’S MISREPRESENTATIONS REGARDING USERS’ ABILITY TO CONTROL THEIR PRIVACY THROUGH GOOGLE ACCOUNT SETTINGS

28. During the relevant time period, GOOGLE also made misrepresentations regarding USERS’ ability to control their privacy, including LOCATION INFORMATION, through GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings.

29. For instance, as part of setting-up a GOOGLE ACCOUNT, GOOGLE expressly tells USERS, “You’re in control. Depending on your account settings, some . . . data may be associated with your Google Account and we treat this data as personal information. You can control how we collect and use this data. . . . You can always adjust your controls later or withdraw your consent. . . .”

30. In another example, since 2019 GOOGLE has maintained a webpage devoted to explaining “How Google uses location information.” This webpage states that “[i]f Web and App Activity is enabled, your searches and activity from a number of other Google services are saved to your Google Account. The activity saved to Web and App Activity may also include location information. . . . Pausing Web & App Activity will stop saving your future searches and activity from other Google services.”

31. In statements like these, GOOGLE frames GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings as tools that allow a USER to control GOOGLE’s collection and use of their personal data. GOOGLE’s statements about these settings are misleading and imply that a USER can stop GOOGLE from storing or deploying the USER’s LOCATION INFORMATION by disabling these settings.

32. Regardless of whether the USER has disabled WEB & APP ACTIVITY or LOCATION HISTORY, GOOGLE collects, stores, and uses location data when a user uses certain GOOGLE products, such as the Google Play Store, Music, Search, and Maps. Additionally, for USERS who are signed in to a GOOGLE ACCOUNT, GOOGLE sometimes associates this information with the USER’s ACCOUNT even if the USER has not enabled WEB & APP ACTIVITY or LOCATION HISTORY.

33. GOOGLE’s representations that USERS can “control” their saved location data fail to disclose that USERS can control only a subset of the LOCATION INFORMATION GOOGLE saves. For instance, the webpage formerly called “My Activities” reflected only some of the LOCATION INFORMATION stored when USERS interact with certain GOOGLE products (e.g., Search, Assistant, and Maps). But GOOGLE also collects and stores LOCATION INFORMATION when users interact with other products and services, such as Google Play Movies and TV, Music, YouTube, and the Google Play Store. And when a USER is signed in to a GOOGLE ACCOUNT, GOOGLE associates this LOCATION INFORMATION with the USER’s GOOGLE ACCOUNT without making the data visible to a USER in their ACCOUNT.

34. Until at least mid-May 2018, GOOGLE also failed to disclose that GOOGLE collects certain types of LOCATION INFORMATION when USERS are not signed in to a GOOGLE ACCOUNT.

35. GOOGLE collects and stores the same type of LOCATION INFORMATION from signed-out users when they use GOOGLE products as it collects and stores from signed-in USERS. GOOGLE merely associates the LOCATION INFORMATION of signed-out USERS with a unique “pseudonymous” identifier rather than the USER’s GOOGLE ACCOUNT.

36. Until May 2018, GOOGLE did not disclose in its Privacy Policy that it stores information from signed-out USERS, who cannot prevent this data collection. Even today, the webpage devoted to explaining “How Google uses location information” only explains how location data is “saved in [a] Google Account,” without explaining that GOOGLE also stores and deploys the LOCATION INFORMATION of USERS who are not signed in to a GOOGLE ACCOUNT when they use GOOGLE products.

37. Contrary to GOOGLE’s representations, disabling or enabling GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings such as LOCATION HISTORY does not control whether GOOGLE will collect, store, or use a USER’s LOCATION INFORMATION. Even disabling all GOOGLE ACCOUNT settings or signing out of a GOOGLE ACCOUNT is not effective to prevent GOOGLE from storing and using a USER’s LOCATION INFORMATION. As a result of GOOGLE’s misleading statements with respect to these settings, USERS cannot reasonably avoid GOOGLE’s access to and use of their LOCATION INFORMATION.

GOOGLE’S MISREPRESENTATIONS REGARDING THE ADS PERSONALIZATION SETTING

38. GOOGLE’s deceptive and unfair practices extend to ADS PERSONALIZATION. ADS PERSONALIZATION is a setting that purports to allow USERS to opt out of personalized advertising and allows USERS to “control” GOOGLE’s use of their LOCATION INFORMATION. According to GOOGLE’s representations, enabling ADS PERSONALIZATION will “[l]et Google use [a user’s Google Account activity] to show [the user] more relevant ads on [Google’s] services and on websites and apps that partner with [Google].” In explaining this setting, GOOGLE told USERS that they should “let Google know [their] location,” so that “[they] won’t get ads for stores in other regions.”

39. GOOGLE’s disclosure misled consumers to believe they can turn off ADS PERSONALIZATION to prevent GOOGLE from using LOCATION INFORMATION to send personalized ads. But this setting only provides an illusion of control. In reality, GOOGLE continues to target ads based on a USER’s location—both on and off GOOGLE products—even if the USER disables ADS PERSONALIZATION.

CONCLUSION

40. Based on these Findings, the Attorneys General have reason to believe that GOOGLE has engaged in deceptive and unfair acts and practices in violation of the Consumer Protection Acts.

III. ASSURANCES

41. The duties, responsibilities, burdens, and obligations undertaken in connection with this Assurance applies to GOOGLE and its directors, officers, employees, representatives, agents, affiliates, parents, subsidiaries, predecessors, assigns, and successors for a period of five (5) years from the FINAL IMPLEMENTATION DATE, except for paragraphs 42, 61, and 62.

j. how USERS can set auto-retention and deletion periods in GOOGLE ACCOUNTS for their LOCATION INFORMATION, including a link to the controls;

k. how and to what extent LOCATION INFORMATION can be:

i. deleted by USERS,

ii. deleted at USERS' request, or

m. USERS' ability to reset any pseudonymous IDs or obfuscated IDs that use LOCATION INFORMATION; and

n. hyperlinks to GOOGLE webpage(s) describing the extent to which LOCATION INFORMATION collected or stored by any LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING is pseudonymized, anonymized, or de-identified when deleted by a USER.

45. The LOCATION TECHNOLOGIES PAGE must be designed and presented in a CLEAR AND CONSPICUOUS disclosure.

46. GOOGLE must disclose as part of the opt-in flow for LOCATION HISTORY ways in which LOCATION INFORMATION previously stored in LOCATION HISTORY that has been de-identified or anonymized is used. The disclosure required in this paragraph must be CLEAR AND CONSPICUOUS and presented when USERS enable or are prompted to enable LOCATION HISTORY within their ACCOUNT Data & Privacy Page or while using a GOOGLE product.

47. When USERS enable or are prompted to enable a LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING while using a GOOGLE product, GOOGLE must present a CLEAR AND CONSPICUOUS disclosure that includes:

- a. a hyperlink to the LOCATION TECHNOLOGIES PAGE; and
- b. the following information concerning the LOCATION-RELATED

ACCOUNT SETTING:

- i. sources of the LOCATION INFORMATION for the LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING;

- ii. purposes for which the LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING collects, retains, and uses LOCATION INFORMATION;

a. a hyperlink to the LOCATION TECHNOLOGIES PAGE; and
b. the following information concerning the LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING:

i. sources of the LOCATION INFORMATION for the LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING,

- c. an additional dialogue advising USERS of LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTINGS enabled by default, including WEB & APP ACTIVITY, and providing USERS with the option to disable the settings; and
- d. for WEB & APP ACTIVITY and any other LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING enabled by default, GOOGLE must disclose the same information described in paragraphs 47(b) and 48(b) above.

50. For the purposes of the disclosures in paragraphs 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, and 49, the information reflected in this Assurance will be presented in a manner that the USER cannot avoid.

51. GOOGLE must notify USERS via email of any material changes to GOOGLE's Privacy Policy concerning the collection, use, and storage of LOCATION INFORMATION.

52. GOOGLE must include a hyperlink to the LOCATION TECHNOLOGIES PAGE in its Privacy Policy.

ACCOUNT CONTROLS

53. GOOGLE must add the following language to the ACCOUNT Data & Privacy Page to help USERS identify LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING controls: "Location info is saved and used based on your settings. Learn more." GOOGLE must maintain the language required in this paragraph on the ACCOUNT Data & Privacy Page (or, should the name of the ACCOUNT Data & Privacy Page change, on the newly-named page that contains the same content).

54. GOOGLE must give USERS the ability to disable a LOCATION-RELATED ACCOUNT SETTING and delete the LOCATION INFORMATION stored by that setting in a single, continuous flow, i.e., without needing to navigate to a separate surface or page.

LIMITS ON DATA USE AND RETENTION

55. GOOGLE will refrain from sharing a USER's PRECISE LOCATION INFORMATION with a third-party advertiser, absent EXPRESS AFFIRMATIVE CONSENT for sharing and use by that third party. GOOGLE's obligations under this paragraph will not restrict GOOGLE's ability to comply with federal, state, or local laws or regulations that require GOOGLE to follow particular processes when obtaining USER consent.

56. GOOGLE will automatically delete LOCATION INFORMATION derived from a DEVICE or from IP addresses in WEB & APP ACTIVITY within thirty (30) days of collection of such LOCATION INFORMATION.

57. GOOGLE will continue to automatically delete LOCATION HISTORY data for INACTIVE USERS within 180 days of the USER receiving an email notification that their data in LOCATION HISTORY will be deleted, unless USERS take steps to keep their data.

a. GOOGLE must send the email notification required by this paragraph within ninety (90) days of the USER becoming inactive.

b. For any USER who is an INACTIVE USER as of the EFFECTIVE DATE, GOOGLE will send the email notification required by this paragraph within thirty (30) days of the EFFECTIVE DATE.

58. Before materially changing how LOCATION HISTORY or WEB & APP ACTIVITY use PRECISE LOCATION INFORMATION after the EFFECTIVE DATE, GOOGLE will internally assess the privacy impact of that change.

59. Before materially changing how GOOGLE shares USERS' PRECISE LOCATION INFORMATION collected in LOCATION HISTORY or WEB & APP ACTIVITY after the EFFECTIVE DATE, GOOGLE will internally assess the privacy impact of that change.

60. All internal assessments in paragraphs 58 and 59 must be documented in writing within GOOGLE.

COMPLIANCE AND REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

61. Within 180 days of the EFFECTIVE DATE, GOOGLE will prepare a report detailing GOOGLE's compliance with this Assurance (the "INITIAL COMPLIANCE REPORT"). The INITIAL COMPLIANCE REPORT must include all relevant implementation date(s) as well as copies of the text of any required disclosures. Further, nothing in this Assurance will be construed to limit the ability of the Office of the Maryland Attorney General to enforce the obligations that GOOGLE has under this Assurance.

70. 71. Nothing in this Assurance will be construed to prevent GOOGLE from complying with laws, regulations, and rules of any State, the United States, or any other jurisdictions.
